

AML Policy

The purpose of this policy is to provide guidance on the Anti-Money Laundering and Know Your Client Policy which is followed by Fino Global Ltd. (hereinafter “the Company”), with registration number C169719, licensed as a Full Service Dealer, excluding underwriting under license number GB19025095, Suite 803, 8th floor, Hennessy Tower, Port Louis, Pope Hennessy Street, Mauritius, to achieve full compliance with the relevant Anti-Money Laundering legislation.

Legal Framework

Investment Firms are required to comply with the provisions of the Anti-Money Laundering and Anti-Terrorism Financing Act 2002 (hereinafter called the “Act” for the purposes of this policy). The main purpose of the Act is to ensure that the Company complies with relevant anti-money laundering and combating funding terrorism laws and regulations, assist law enforcement in combating illegal money laundering, and minimizes the risk of the Company’s resources being used for improper purposes.

In accordance with the Act, Investment Firms are obliged to set out policies and procedures for preventing money laundering activities. Those procedures, which are implemented by the Company, as these are requested by the Act, are the following:

- A. Record keeping procedures in relation to clients’ identity and their transactions.
- B. Compliance officers at management level in each branch and subsidiary who will be in charge of the application of the internal programs and procedures, including proper maintenance of records and reporting of suspicious transactions.
- C. Appropriate procedures of internal control and risk management, with the purpose of preventing money laundering activities.
- D. The detailed examination of every transaction that due to its nature is considered vulnerable to money laundering, and especially for complicated or unusually large transactions and transactions that take place without an obvious financial or legal purpose.
- E. Measures for making employees aware of the procedures mentioned above set forth to prevent money laundering and of the legislation relating to money laundering.
- F. Provision of regular training to their employees in the recognition and handling of transactions suspected to be associated with money laundering.

- G. Audit functions to evaluate such policies, procedures and controls to test compliance with the measures taken by the reporting institution to comply with the provisions of this Act and the effectiveness of such measures.

Policy

The provisions of the Act have been adopted by the Company, which introduces procedures and processes that ensure compliance with the Act on this matter.

1. CLIENT IDENTIFICATION AND DUE DILIGENCE PROCEDURES

The Company has adopted all requirements in relation to client identification and Due Diligence procedures as follows:

A. Due Diligence procedures are applied in the following cases:

- When establishing a business relationship.
- When carrying out one-off transactions amounting to USD15.000 (fifteen thousand dollars) or more, whether the transaction is carried out in a single operation or in several operations which appear to be linked.
- When there is a suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing, irrespective of the amount of the transaction.
- When there are doubts about the veracity or adequacy of previously obtained client identification data.

Failure or refusal by a client to submit the required data and information for the verification of their identity, without adequate justification, constitutes elements that may lead to the creation of a suspicion that the client is involved in money laundering or terrorist financing activities. In such an event, the Company does not proceed with the establishment of the business relationship.

The practice to which the Company adheres in order to comply with the requirements of the Act on the subject of the client identification is achieved on a risk-based approach and it is set out below:

The Company has put in place procedures in relation to Client Identification and Due Diligence as listed below:

- When establishing a business relationship.
- When carrying out one-off transactions amounting to USD15.000 (fifteen thousand dollars) or more, whether the transaction is carried out in a single operation or in several operations which appear to be linked.
- When there is a suspicion of money laundering or terrorist financing, irrespective of the amount of the transaction.
- When there are doubts about the veracity or adequacy of previously obtained client identification data

Ø Timing of identification

Client and beneficial owner identification shall be completed before the establishment of a business relationship or the carrying out of a transaction.

By way of derogation, the verification of the identity of the client and the beneficial owner may take place during the establishment of a business relationship if this is necessary so that the normal conduct of business is not interrupted and where there is limited risk of money laundering or terrorist financing occurring. In such a situation, these procedures shall be completed as soon as practicable after the initial contact.

Ø Renewal of client identification

Reviews of existing records shall take place on a regular basis, thus ensuring that the documents, data or information held are kept up-to-date. Client Due Diligence procedures shall be applied not only to all new clients but also at appropriate times to existing clients on a risk sensitive basis.

B. Simplified Client Due Diligence

Simplified procedures may apply for lower risk clients. More detailed client Due Diligence measures for lower risk clients shall apply when there is a suspicion of money laundering, regardless of any derogation, exemption or threshold, and not whenever a business relationship is established.

It should be noted that the Company shall gather sufficient information to establish if the client qualifies to be classified as a lower risk client.

C. Enhanced Client Due Diligence

The Company applies enhanced client Due Diligence measures in situations which by nature can present high risk of money laundering or terrorist financing. More specifically, where the client has not been physically presented for identification purposes, the Company shall take specific and adequate measures to compensate for the high risk, by applying one or more of the following measures:

- Ensuring that the client's identity is established by additional documents, data or information.
- Supplementary measures to verify or certify the documents supplied or requiring confirmatory certification by a credit or financial institution.
- Ensuring that the first payment of the operations is carried out through an account opened in the client's name with a reputable credit institution.

D. Politically Exposed Persons

Politically exposed persons are individuals who are or have been entrusted with prominent public functions in a foreign country and close associate is someone with a close relationship with the politically exposed persons. The Company adopts the following additional Due Diligence measures to determine whether a prospective client is a politically exposed person:

- Take appropriate measures for the establishment of the origin of the client's assets and the source of funds that are related with the establishment of the business relationship or transaction.
- Conduct enhanced and continuous monitoring of the business relationship.
- Conduct further Due Diligence by requesting a bank statement and additional identification.
- Requests references or confirmation of duties in public office.

E. Anonymous or Numbered Accounts

The Company does not offer or maintain anonymous or numbered accounts. Additionally, the Company pays special attention to any money laundering or terrorist financing threat that may arise from products or transactions that might favor anonymity and take measures to prevent their use for money laundering or terrorist financing purposes.

F. Client Accounts in Third Person

The Company does not offer or maintain accounts in the name of Third persons. Additionally, the Company pays special attention to any money laundering or terrorist financing threat that may arise from individuals or legal persons that attempt to establish an account in the third person for the purpose of money laundering or terrorist financing purposes.

G. Record keeping procedures

The Company should keep the following documents and information for use in any investigation into, or analysis, of possible money laundering or terrorist financing by national authorities:

- The name and address of clients and copies or records of official identification documents (like passports, identity cards).
- The name and address (or identification code) of counterparties.
- The form of instruction or authority.
- The account details from which any funds were paid.
- The form and destination of payment made by the business to the client.
- Business correspondence

For client Due Diligence, a copy of the references of the evidence is required, for a period of at least 6 years after the business relationship with the client has ended.

For business relationship and transactions, the supporting evidence and records for a period of at least six years following the carrying out of the transactions or the end of the business relationship.

The retention of the documents/data, other than the original documents or their certified true copies that are kept in a hard copy form, may be in other forms, such as electronic form, provided that the Company is able to retrieve the relevant documents/data without undue delay and present them at any time upon request.

2. CLIENT ACCOUNT OPENING PROCEDURES

The necessary Due Diligence procedures, as described above, are applied to ensure all Know Your Client (KYC) policies are adhered to, all documents necessary for proceeding with KYC procedure are provided and the Company may accept the client and proceed to the account opening. Subsequently the client completes the account opening forms indicating all required information. The responsible employee collects all initial information of the client and the relevant department reviews and approves the client.

Where the client refuses to provide any of the required information the Company then suspends the trading account and/or terminates the business relationship with the client.

2.1 Client Risk Classification

- Low risk customers: individuals and entities whose identities and source of wealth can be efficiently determined, and their transactions and income are consistent with their economic profile, shall be classified as low risk.
- Normal risk customers: individuals and entities whose identities and source of wealth can be determined, and their income is not likely to deviate from the pattern of transactions and their economic profile shall be classified as normal risk clients.
- High risk clients: individuals and entities that are likely to pose a higher than average risk to the company shall be considered as high-risk clients. In these cases, Enhanced Due Diligence will be applied and based on the results the Company may choose to investigate further and/or terminate choose not to establish a business relationship with the potential client. The closed accounts of the high-risk clients are documented.

The Company considers all the non-face to face clients as High risk, taking into consideration the FATF publications with regards to the related threats to the integrity of the International Financial system, the Company applies simplified due diligence or enhanced due diligence depending on the case and takes all the appropriate measures and procedures to ensure compliance with the Money Laundering and Terrorism (Prevention) Act.
